This is amazing. There are some people with serious time on their hands. If you took the opportunity to visit the websites that are related here instead of just trying to find the hidden conspiracy, then you would be more than convinced about the completely normal relationship that I have with my brother Rami.

I am the greatest consumer advocate for wine in the State of Nevada. I am the Wine Columnist for Las Vegas Review Journal and Las Vegas Magazine and I am the de-facto wine press in this town, so why would I not give hungry consumers an opportunity to buy great wines at decent prices, just like I always do in my columns. You can find all my extensive article libraries on the website listed below and you'll also see how deeply involved I am with tasting and promoting Bordeaux and what the hell is wrong with that? And since when is a little nepotism not cool?

I am not financially affiliated with Lee's in any way and despite having registered the original website for Lee's Wine Club, which you will learn was in advance of convincing my brother to come here for that gig, then everything should be just fine.

It is interesting how when "someone" mentions a "sale" at PC, then there's a huge rush to buy wines that they have had on "sale" several times before or had in inventory for ages at the same prices...but no witchhunt?

By the way, I did not hear any "Wine Hunters" mentioning finding a better price for Lafite 59 in the world, so why is that not a sale? 🤔
